Edward Lauterbach's Daughter Among

Those to Be Graduated at the University School.

The University Law School of the City of New York began its examinations yesterday. They will continue for about two weeks. Among the prospective graduates are several young women. Two of these, on account of their extreme youthfulness, will take a post-graduate course next year. They are Miss Florence Lauterbach, daughter of Edward Lauterbach, and Miss Marcella Malone, whose father was the late Dr. Edward Malone, of Brooklyn, Miss Lauterbach is the youngest member of her class, being only nineteen years of age. She is siender and tall, with dark hair and eyes. Mrs. Lauterbach said yesterday, in answer

Mrs. Lauterbach said yesterday, in answer to inqstries:

"My daughter was graduated from Mrs. Reed's school. After leaving it, she desired to occupy her mind with some pursuit other than those which society gives, and in we was her choice. She has as yet no plans for the future in regard to her profession. Her post-graduate course must come first."

Dr. Caroline Louise Bristol, Ph. B., one of the coming graduates, is at present on the staff of the Long Island State Hospital, which position she has occupied for several years. Her husband is a practising lawyer in Chicago. Dr. Bristol's desire to aid her husband in his profession decided her to enter the study of law. She will, of course, relinquish medicine. She is a graduate of Cornell.

relinquish medicine. She is a granuate of Cornell.

The class has an unusually interesting member in Miss Alice Serber, who is a Russian. She is quick and bright and will have the honor of being the first of her nation admitted to the bar in this country. She expects to practise in partnership with some one as yet unknown.

Miss Marcella Maione in point of age comes next to Miss Lauterbach. She, like this young woman, has imbibed the law atmosphere in her own home circle, her two brothers being in that profession.

Another of the women soon to be graduated has the same idea as Dr. Bristol, and anticipates being an assistant to her husband, whose law office is in this city.

In Charge of Mrs. Stetson's Estate. May 15 .- Judge Grant to-day appointed Mrs. Kate S. Stokes administratrix of the estate of her daughter, the late Catherine Stokes Stetson, widow of John Stetson, the theatrical manager.

Theatrical Notes.

Fregoli will give his first matines at Olympia, to-day. A sketch specialty for ladies will be presented. The Bostonians close their season at the Har-lem Opera House May 30, "Robin Hood" will be sung all the week.
